Mobilizing Peer Support for Effective Heart Failure (HF) Self-Management

The major goals of this project are to evaluate a six-month intervention that consists of patient group visits with HF nurse managers to support behavioral goal setting ('action planning') in conjunction with initial patient training in motivational interviewing-based peer communication skills and matching of peer pairs to provide mutual assistance through a low-cost interactive voice response telephone exchange system that promotes peer-to-peer communication and facilitates communication with care managers. Dr. Heisler's effort runs concurrently with her VA Career Development Award.

Role: Consultant

Improving Psychosocial Treatment for Perinatal Depression

The overall purpose of this study is to develop an intervention tailored to the unique individual-level issues (such as physical and childcare limitations, stigma, and preference for psychosocial treatments) faced by women during the perinatal period. Specifically, both the delivery method and content of an existing, evidence-based depression treatment (CBT) will be adapted based on information learned as part of this phased project. At the termination of the project, a larger clinical trial testing the efficacy of the adapted treatment will be proposed as part of a planned R01.

Adherence and Intensification of Medications (AIM)

The specific objectives of this study are 1) to evaluate the effects of the intervention on blood pressure (primary outcomes) and glycemic and lipid control (secondary outcomes); 2) to assess the impact of the intervention on patients' adherence to blood pressure, anti-hyperglycemic, and lipid-lowering regimens, and intensity of these regimens; 3) to evaluate the cost-effectiveness of the intervention compared to usual care; 4) to evaluate the level of attainment of intervention implementation, examine the process of intervention implementation, and determine the potential for sustainability.
